Port Jervis Man Is Held in Slaying

Brooklyn Divorcee, 38, Killed in Front of Her Home

New York, June 20 (AP)—A Port Jervis handyman, who police said shot and killed a divorcee in anger over his spurned attentions, was held on a murder charge today.

The accused slayer, Francis McLaughlin, 38, shot down Mrs. Mildred Munson, 38-year-old New York Telephone Company business representative, as she walked with Raymond White, 42, a barber, police said.

In Brooklyn felony court, McLaughlin was held without bail for grand jury action. Mrs. Hansen is the mother of a six-year-old daughter.

Police said the shooting happened this way:

Shot on Street
New York, June 20 (AP)—A Brooklyn divorcee was shot down and killed in front of her home last night by a spurned suitor.

The victim was Mrs. Mildred Hansen, 38, the mother of a six-year-old daughter. Police said the killing was Francis McLaughlin, 38, who formerly had worked for Mrs. Hansen at a lodge resort in Millport, Pa., and whom she had earlier befriended. When he proposed marriage, they said, she rejected him.

Mrs. Hansen was talking with an escort when McLaughlin drove up behind them and leaped out with a .22 caliber rifle. Police said he fired three shots at the woman. One bullet struck her in the back, killing her instantly.

McLaughlin was seized after a short chase by the police and a patrolman, and booked on a homicide charge.

Employed as Caretaker
Police said McLaughlin, a Port Jervis, N. Y., farmer, had been employed as a caretaker for Mrs. Hansen at $25 a week.

Mrs. Hansen's father, Ernest Kreth, told reporters that he and his wife and daughter were kind to McLaughlin, adding:

"We felt sorry for him. He had nothing. We took him in, clothed him, fed him, and gave him a place to sleep."

McLaughlin, who admitted his love for Mrs. Hansen, had often mentioned marriage to her indirectly. But she had brushed off such talk. Kreth said that McLaughlin had never gone so far as an actual proposal.

Last week Mrs. Hansen and her family sold the lodge for $15,000. On Friday McLaughlin came to Brooklyn and tried to see Mrs. Hansen, but she refused.

Police said in reconstructing the incident that McLaughlin (Continued on Page 16, Col. 4)

Three Hudson Girls Are Still at Large

Hudson, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—All but three of the 24 teen-age girls who broke out of the state training school for girls late yesterday had been rounded up by noon today.

The girls, ranging in age from 13 to 16, escaped by scaling a 12-foot wire fence.

It was the second break in two days at the institution, for juveniles and delinquents. Three girls escaped Sunday. They have not been caught.

Ten of the girls who escaped yesterday were caught in the Hudson area, five were picked up in Catskill, three along highways south of Hudson and three in Rockland county.

About 225 girls are housed at the institution. Escapes of two or three girls at a time are not unusual as the girls are granted freedom of the grounds.

Secretary Appeals to Governors

Acheson Asks Support for Program to Aid Backward Areas of World

Assails Attacks

Opposition Veils Good Aspects of Self-Help in Plans, He Says

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 20 (AP)—Secretary of State Acheson appealed to the nation's governors today to support President Truman's program of aid for the world's backward areas.

"By aiding the people of underdeveloped areas to deal with their basic problems of food, health and education," he said, "we shall be strengthening their resistance against extremism of whatever kind."

Acheson spoke before the state governors who have gathered for a four-day study of domestic and world problems.

In his prepared speech, the secretary dealt entirely with United States efforts to help strengthen the free world and maintain world peace.

The administration has advanced the aid to backward areas program—called "Point Four"—after its position in President Truman's inaugural address—as an important factor in building peace, Acheson said.

"The effect of these attacks," he said, "has been to obscure the basic elements of self-help in the program and to obscure the fact that it deals with fundamental problems of community life—health, sanitation and agriculture."

Gov. James H. Duff of Pennsylvania told a reporter in advance of Acheson's talk that he hoped to find out what the Truman administration proposes to do about halting the advance of communism in Asia. Duff is a Republican candidate for the Senate this fall.

Acheson's "point four" discussion did not go into this broad question.

Duff, who supports the European Recovery Plan, said he wants to know if there is a Truman doctrine for Asia, similar to that for Greece and Turkey.

Hoffman Gives Talk
Paul G. Hoffman, the Economic Cooperation Administrator, hinted in a speech at the annual state dinner of the governors last night that there may be such a plan in the making. He said:

"If we wage the peace not only in Europe but in other areas where the Kremlin is threatening to destroy freedom, I for one am completely confident that the free world will win out against the Kremlin."

Hoffman told the governors that it would take just as much effort to win the peace as it would to win World War III.

He said he is concerned by the "growing acceptance of the inevitability of World War III," but was not discounting as anything less than titanic the struggle now going on between the Soviets and the free world.

Hoffman insisted that the effort to win the peace was the only way to win World War III.

Democrats to Ram Tax Bill Through With House Vote

Measure Designed to Give Truman His Demand Excise Cuts Be Balanced

Washington, June 20 (AP)—Democratic tax law managers made ready today to ram through the House a bill slashing excise taxes by $1,010,000,000 a year, after tacking on a corporation tax boost to avoid a veto.

The House Ways and Means committee voted $433,000,000 in new taxes late yesterday. It was designed to meet President Truman's requirement that the excise cuts must be offset by larger taxes elsewhere, before he will sign the bill.

This would cut the tax load of small corporations earning from $5,000 to $107,000; but jump the present 38 per cent income tax rate for the biggest corporations to almost 41 per cent.

Administration leaders immediately predicted the tax bill in a form suitable to the President will be handed to the White House in time for Congress to adjourn July 31.

However, this schedule assumes prompt approval by the White House, where the bill is expected to come up next week, and the less likely prospect of quick Senate passage.

May Come September 1
If it goes through, excises now imposed will be slashed—probably on September 1—on fur coats, movies, jewelry, travel tickets, luggage, telephones, tires, tubes, baby bottle warmers and scores of other items.

The big corporation tax boost, if approved by House and Senate, would just about cover completely the estimated $1,010,000,000 excise cut. The committee, by a 10 per cent withholding on corporation dividends, loophole plugging and various other tax changes, already had found ways to pick up an estimated $465,000,000 in addition to the $433,000,000 from corporations.

Here's what the committee voted:

1. A flat 21 per cent normal tax rate on all corporation earnings.

2. A flat 20 per cent surtax rate on all corporation taxable earnings over $25,000.

This means a tax rate of 21 per cent on the first $25,000 and 41 per cent on all over $25,000. The new rates, if finally approved, would become effective on the taxable year beginning after December 31, 1949.

The corporation income tax now is 21 per cent on the first $5,000 of earnings, 23 per cent on the next $15,000; 25 per cent on the next $5,000; 33 per cent on $25,000 to $50,000; and 38 per cent on all over $50,000.

Certain changes in this city's parking meter ordinance and in the method of collecting fines were recommended in the State Department of Audit and Control's report which is now available for public inspection at the city clerk's office.

With a few minor exceptions, the report states that the fiscal records of the city during the period of January 1, 1947, to December 31, 1948, were accurate. The report was compiled by Howard C. Boy, 6, Is Drowned Off Gill's Dock

Paul Costello Is First Drowning Victim of the Season

Paul Costello, 6, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Costello, 24 Lindsley avenue, drowned last night when he fell from a fence at Gill's dock into the Rondout creek.

Coroner Michael A. Galletta today issued a verdict of "accidental death by drowning." The boy was the city's first drowning victim of the season.

Officers Frank Sammons and Kenneth Stratton, who were dispatched to the scene when the mishap was reported at 6:15 p. m., said they learned the boy "was walking on top of a fence at the edge of the dock" when he fell.

With him at the time, the officers said, was Kenneth White, 7, of 46 Sycamore street.

Police headquarters notified the fire department, the W. N. Conner ambulance service, the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., emergency crew, Dr. B. J. Datto and the coroner.

The body was taken from the water shortly before 7 p. m. by Capt. Edward H. Albrecht of the fire department, who used grappling hooks, and the boy was pronounced dead by Dr. Datto.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy with Deputy Chief George Matthews, Capt. Albrecht and Firemen George McKee and Clayton Staller, were at the scene to apply artificial respiration and the inhalator before the arrival of Dr. Datto and Coroner Galletta.

Minelli Says Story Is Distorted, Wishes People Would Let Wife Alone

Hollywood, June 20 (AP)—Judy Garland cut her throat in a fit of anguish, her studio disclosed today. The wound is not serious.

After Miss Garland's husband, Vincent Minelli, earlier denied such a report, Ralph Wheelwright, studio publicity aide, made the following statement to reporters who gathered at the distraught actress' palatial pink mansion on Sunset Boulevard:

"Miss Garland was in conference last night at about six o'clock at 8850 Evansview Drive (another house of Miss Garland's) with her husband Vincent Minelli, her business manager, Carlton Alphon, and her secretary, Myrtle Tully. They were discussing Miss Garland's future. At one point in the discussion, Miss Garland who has been under strain and ill became despondent and hysterical and rushed from the living room through the bedroom and into the bathroom, locking the door behind her."

The body was taken from the water shortly before 7 p. m. by Capt. Edward H. Albrecht of the fire department, who used grappling hooks, and the boy was pronounced dead by Dr. Datto.

Spring Gives Cold Nod to Summer

New Season Will Arrive Wednesday; Month Had Record Heat, Cold

Spring took a cold turn in its lingering days before bowing out to summer which arrives officially at 6:37 a. m. tomorrow.

This month's part of the season, which produced three days in the 90's during its first few days, turned about later to produce 46 degrees yesterday—the lowest in the city engineer's records for June 19.

June 8, with a temperature of 96 degrees, was the warmest day of that date in the engineer's records, and two days before that temperatures were 90 and 93.

Cooler weather came with the rains of last week with the mercury first in the 60's and then the low 70's. Then the trend was downward again over the weekend until yesterday's record of 46 for the date. The lowest early today was 54 degrees. The high at noon today was 69 while yesterday it was 62 degrees.

The hottest June 19 was in 1942 when the mercury hit 93, and the coldest before yesterday was in 1939 with 50 degrees recorded. The coldest June day on record was one in 1946 when the low was 41 degrees.

Rainfall, to date, meanwhile, indicates that the total for the month will be above average. The total so far is 4.11 inches and the month's average is 4.14 inches.

Says People Kept Away From Truth

State Department Placed Shield Around Those Who Sold or Gave U. S. Secrets, He Says

Service Is Named

Foreign Service Officer Is Cited With Aiding Sino Red Leader

Washington, June 20 (AP)—Patrick J. Hurley, former U. S. ambassador to China, got a bad today from State investigators to elaborate on his charge that the State Department had shielded officials who "sold or gave" top secret documents to "pro-Communist."

Hurley made the charge yesterday in a statement issued at Santa Fe, N. M. It was linked to the 1945 Amerasia documents that case now under investigation by a Senate foreign relations subcommittee.

Chairman Tydings (D-Md.) told reporters the committee would call Hurley to testify as soon as possible. Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa), a committee member, also urged Hurley's appearance.

Hurley charged that the State Department has for five years "kept the people from knowing the truth about the theft of top secret documents by officials of the State Department who sold or gave them to pro-Communists."

He also accused State Department officials, both in China and in Washington, of sabotaging American policy in China while he was ambassador there in 1944 and 1945.

Service Is Named
Hurley named John S. Service, State Department foreign service officer, as one of the persons who he said supplied Chinese Communist leaders with top secret information in 1944.

Service was one of the six persons arrested in 1945 after federal raiders had seized hundreds of government documents in the New York offices of Amerasia magazine. He was not indicted.

L. M. Wright, he was charged by Senator McCarthy (R-Wis.) with having "Communist affiliations." A few days later he was called back to the United States from a new assignment in India, to face a fresh State Department loyalty quiz.

Service, who denied the McCarthy charge, is scheduled to appear before the committee Thursday to testify about the Amerasia case. He was not available for comment on Hurley's statement. The State Department said it had no comment last night.

Tomorrow the committee plans to take testimony from John E. Purroy, deputy undersecretary of state. McCarthy charged in a speech last Thursday that Purroy made a "pay-off" deal with a witness to protect Service in testimony before the committee.

Witness Is Named
McCarthy named the witness as Emanuel Larsen, a former State Department employee and a co-defendant in the Amerasia case. Larsen testified before the committee recently behind closed doors.

McCarthy said that Purroy had promised Larsen free legal advice and loyalty clearance for another government job in return for favorable testimony about Service.

Purroy immediately denied the charge and, committee aides said, asked that he be given a hearing.

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) told reporters he would seek Monday to have the Senate Judiciary Committee approve a Republican-sponsored resolution for a separate investigation of the Justice Department's handling of the case.

Senator Capehart (R-Ind.), Ferguson and other Republicans have charged that the Justice Dept. (Continued on Page 16, Col. 2)

Committee Named To Study Change

A steering committee was named to investigate a centralization proposal at a meeting of trustees and school district representatives in the town of Saugerties, recently, and Clarence Johnson, district superintendent, was authorized to file an application with the state education department for a survey.

Trustees and representatives elected at the annual school meetings attended the recent session in the Saugerties High School, with 14 out of 22 districts represented and 28 persons in attendance.

Carl Wille, trustee of the Ruby School, was elected chairman, and Miss Grace Anderson, Mt. Marion, secretary.

Five persons with two alternates named to study the costs, problems, plans and other details were: Freeman Stoy, Dist. 21; Thomas Penning, Dist. 15; Mrs. Leroy Donaldson, Dist. 14; Mrs. Emily Spada, Dist. 9; Holly R. Cantina, Dist. 3, and alternates: Mrs. Henry Schneider, Dist. 10 and Charles A. Smith, Dist. 15.

The application to the state department is aimed at determining cost, the tax rate, facilities available, and what plans are feasible. The plan does not commit any or all districts to centralization, it was announced.

It was stressed also that the state has no standardized formula for centralization, and must have a group of citizens with which it can work in determining specific needs and plans.

Meetings will be held throughout the township to present findings when the survey is completed, and it is not expected that the study will get under way until early fall because earlier dates are scheduled by other townships.

F.B.I. Boss Wins

Washington, June 20 (AP)—J. Edgar Hoover's campaign for 300 additional F.B.I. agents to hunt down Communist spies appeared today to be tabbed for victory. The House Appropriations Committee and a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee were reported to have agreed to approve the F.B.I. director's request. The Senate Subcommittee's recommendation is expected to be accepted in turn by the full appropriations group and the Senate.

Cases Held Today In County Court

Vincent J. Stokes and Eino V. Salmi, charged with violation of Section 483-b, a morals charge, both entered pleas of guilty to the charge in county court today and imposition of sentence was suspended during good behavior.

Francis Martocci appeared for Salmi and Bernard A. Culliton appeared for Stokes. In suspending imposition of sentence Judge Cushman informed the two defendants that under a new law which became effective on April 1, 1950, the court had the authority to impose a sentence of from one day to life in this type of offense and cautioned the defendants to keep away from similar acts in the future or face the provisions of that law.

Both were involved with several others in a case which involves the morals of a minor. Alfred Bell, represented by Elmer H. Nallan, had a burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry charge sealed when counsel asked that Bell be prosecuted under the Youthful Offender law. Bell entered a plea of innocent to the charge of being a youthful offender after waiting his right to trial by a jury. The case will be disposed of at chambers.

Paul Leach and Earl Cobb, Kingston, charged with burglary, third degree, and unlawful entry to a downtown tavern, were represented by Robert Orlis and entered pleas of guilty to the charge. They were also indicted for larceny, second degree. Sentence will be imposed on Thursday at 10 o'clock.

An unusual charge against Howard Minger was put over until Monday, June 26 at 2 o'clock. Court adjourned until Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

Rifton Man Dies Of Gunshot; His Death Is Suicide

Frederick Isadore Ekquist, 61, died of a gunshot wound which state police said was self-inflicted at his home in Rifton about 9 a. m. today.

A verdict of death by suicide has been issued by Coroner Ernest A. Kelly.

Sgt. F. W. Hillfrank and Trooper H. E. Rasmussen of the state police reported they learned through investigation that Ekquist had been in ill health for some time and had threatened suicide several times during the past week because he feared having to return to Bellevue Hospital, New York, where he had been a patient.

Ekquist appeared with a shotgun in his wife's room upstairs in their home this morning, troopers learned. The wife, Mrs. Emma Ekquist, 62, became frightened and ran downstairs, from where she heard a shot and returned to find her husband suffering from a wound under the left armpit, troopers said. Clean-Up Drive Planned by C.C.

Wayne C. Reynolds, chairman of a Chamber of Commerce committee, this morning announced the dates of July 1 to 15 as Kingston's "Clean-up, Paint-up, Fix-up" time.

Reynolds addressed a meeting of the Uplown Businessmen's Association in Ne. berry's basement, asking the cooperation of the members in helping make the city attractive to outsiders.

The campaign will include special advertising, publicity, and the aid of Boy Scouts and other groups.

Reynolds warned that residents sometimes become used to the conditions which exist in a city and overlook the fact that summer visitors form their impressions of a city on their first visit, and that cleanliness is a big factor in determining whether or not a visitor will return. Sometimes, "the first impression is the last," he said.

Reynolds asked the cooperation of merchants in tying in the clean-up theme in their regular advertising. "This can be done not only by stores selling paint, repair and cleaning materials, but also by almost every type of retail store. For instance, he mentioned furniture stores might offer replacing or reupholstering shabby furniture and jewelry stores might advertise the value of having attractive place settings in one's home.

Financial and Commercial

New York, June 20 (AP)—A mid-morning burst of selling unsettled the stock market today.

Acute weakness developed in a hand-picked group of high-grade stocks which have recently been heavily favored. Losses running to around two points—in a few cases more—were quickly scored before support appeared.

The widest declines were shared in most cases.

Among the hardest hit stocks were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, American Telephone, Santa Fe, U. S. Rubber, Kennecott Copper, Allied Chemical, Dow Chemical, du Pont, American Can, and Superior Oil of California.

Radio-television issues did fairly well, with Emerson Radio up a trifle at one time.

Rails were pulled down a bit in the corporate bond market. U. S. Governments held steady in over-the-counter dealings.

Trimmed in the curb were Menasha Mfg., Pontepiece Oil, Raytheon Mfg., Standard Power, United Light, American Metal Products, Cities Service, Checot Petroleum, Electric Bond & Share, Kaiser-Frazer, and Lionel Corp.

Standard Brewing, Waltham Watch, and American Bantam Car "A" improved.

Husband Denies

hind her. She broke a drinking glass and with the broken glass made a superficial laceration on her throat.

Sent for Doctor

"Minelli got her to open the door and she was immediately very repentant and weeping. They sent for Dr. Francis Ballard who treated the wound. He said it was very minor and attributed it to an impulsive, hysterical act.

"Miss Garland is now resting under her doctor's care. She is asleep. I saw her and she has a slight bandage on her neck. No stitches were taken.

"She is not to be disturbed and no pictures will be taken."

Wheelwright explained that Miss Garland was suspended by her failing to report on a picture, was resting and could not be disturbed.

The report was published in two Los Angeles afternoon papers. One report said Minelli intervened and took a knife away from his wife before she could hurt herself.

This Minelli also denied.

Falls to Report

Judy failed to report for work on "Amor Got Your Gun" last year and was suspended by Metro. Betty Hutton took the role and Miss Garland went to a Boston hospital for treatment.

She returned and did "Summer Stock," which has had excellent reviews.

When June Allison, wife of Dick Powell, gave up the role in "Royal Wedding" with Fred Astaire Judy was put in that part.

Last Saturday she failed to report for rehearsal and Metro announced she was on suspension and would be replaced in the picture.

Minelli said conferences with her lawyer and studio attorneys were under way yesterday and "some progress was made." He said he hopes Judy will get the role back.

Took News Badly

Her agent, Carlton Alsop, said Miss Garland took the news of her suspension "badly."

"She seemed like someone who had been kicked in the stomach," said Alsop.

He too denied the knife story. Alsop said he spent several hours with her and Minelli, last night trying to cheer her.

"The rehearsal was only for an hour," he said.

"The picture isn't scheduled to start until July 15."

"I don't see how an hour's absence at this stage can be so important."

Judy had been at Metro since she was 12, in show business since she was three.

She and Minelli have a daughter, Lisa, four. They once were estranged, but reunited after Miss Garland came out of the Boston Hospital.

campaign for her husband's freedom, said about two weeks ago she had been told "things are moving along nicely, and we may have some good news for you soon, but don't get your hopes up."

The United States almost five years ago returned to the Hungarians another highly-prized relic of the king-saint, his embalmed hand. Its return in August, 1945, before the Communists seized power and just in time for the annual St. Stefan's Day observance, touched off one of the greatest celebrations in the country's post-war history.

Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, Hungary's Roman Catholic primate now serving a life sentence for treason, was charged by the Communist government with urging the Americans to release St. Stefan's crown only to the Vatican.

The archbishop of New York, Francis Cardinal Spellman, said at the time that Mindszenty had asked him to help keep the crown out of Communist hands. Cardinal Spellman asked the War Department to "take every possible care" of the relic, which he said was "an object of great veneration among the Hungarian people."

Movie Creates Lion Famine

Rome (AP)—Europe is in for a lion famine this summer. Except for zoos, there'll hardly be a lion to be seen. Circusmen won't have them. The reason: the movies "Quo Vadis," being filmed this summer at Cinecitta outside Rome, had to have fifty-six lions for its Circus Maximus scenes. And that's just about as many lions as there are in postwar Europe. The film producer leased the whole lot of them.

WHEN A BOOK BEGINS

When does an author begin work on a book? This question interests the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which lets a writer spread over a 36-month period the income he gets in one year from one work. This reduces the tax. The author's work must cover 36 months or more from the beginning of the enterprise.

The matter has come up in the dispute of the Bureau with David Richardson, author of "American Guerrilla in the Philippines". While in the navy in November, 1941, he decided to write a book on his war experiences, and began to keep notes. In April, 1942, the notes were lost in a Japanese attack. A second set went when his out-rigger canoe capsized off the Philippine coast. The third set was more successful; the book came out in April, 1945.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue ruled that Richardson had spent less than 36 months on the book. He insisted that the true commencement was April 9, 1942, the date of the first happening described in the text, or January 1, 1943, when he began to take notes on his guerrilla experiences. Either date was less than 36 months from January 18, 1945, when he sent his manuscript to the publisher.

The Federal Tax Court has come to Richardson's aid, ruling that his work began in 1941, when he started to take notes. Losing them later was immaterial.

Future authors might claim that work began with their first idea. "Robinson Crusoe", which appeared in 1719, was based on a passage in Captain Edward Cooke's "Voyages" published in 1712. DeFoe's work therefore began in 1712; the Tax Court would have so ruled. The Bureau would have been cold to DeFoe's claim unless he could have shown his dated notes.

The moral to all authors is: Keep your preliminary notes. The tax collector will get you if you don't.

General Eisenhower thinks that the Alaska garrisons should be strengthened. Whoever would have thought only a few years ago that there was any possibility of a war of any sort taking place in frozen Alaska?

WONDER SHIP

To the list of historic ships add the St. Roch. This Royal Canadian Mounted Police boat, which docked at New York the other day, is the first ship on record to circumnavigate North America. It also made the first recorded eastward crossing of the Northwest Passage, the waterway across Northern Canada from Pacific to Atlantic.

The only modern vessel with a record of exploration like this is the Fram, the sturdy craft in which the Norwegian explorer Friedrich Nansen hoped to drift across the North Pole. Caught in the ice, he nevertheless made the farthest northern voyage of his day. Later Roald Amundsen, another Norwegian, took the Fram to Antarctica as a base of supplies for his dash to the South Pole.

With such a record as the St. Roch possesses, it should, when no longer seaworthy, go to some museum, where an honored use could be found for it, as auditorium for talks or as show room for pictures and objects illustrating the age of exploration.

A word to the wise is said to be sufficient. No wonder there are so many long-winded people.

PARTY STRATEGY

President Truman is not in favor of expelling the Dixiecrats from the Democratic party. He thinks that the Democratic party could use all the votes it can get from any source.

This view will not be accepted by many who would like to have the lines between the two main parties more sharply defined, with the conservatives in one and the liberals in the other.

It may be questioned whether this will ever be accomplished on a wholesale basis, whatever individual voters may do. Former Vice President John N. Garner, who had an intimate knowledge of politics, thought that

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE GOEBBELS DIARIES

This is a case that I cannot understand, but maybe the readers will. I shall try to make it as clear and interesting as possible, but that will be a chore.

It seems that Frank E. Mason and Louis P. Lochner, two distinguished American journalists, came into possession of the diaries of Goebbels, Hitler's public relations man. They got Doubleday & Company to publish the diaries in English.

The book went well and on October 31, 1949, Doubleday said that they owed Mason and Lochner $131,804.34, but that they would not pay over the money because the Office of Alien Property had intervened in the matter.

No inappropriately was involved as to how these newspapermen got the diary. A civilian employee of the military government of the United States in Berlin, William F. Heimlich, of Columbus, Ohio, obtained 7,000 loose sheets to Herbert Hoover, who was then in Germany, for the Hoover Library in Stanford University, California. The War Department permitted the Hoover Library to collect documents. Heimlich's presentation was known to his superiors.

Lochner and Mason translated this material with the permission of the Hoover Library, producing the book, "The Goebbels Diaries." When Harold I. Benton of the Office of Alien Property learned that such a book was to be published, he entered a claim that the material was the property of the government of the United States.

Then this office went further. Through an official, David L. Bazelon, assistant attorney general, Mason and Lochner were asked to sign a letter professing that they had no right to publish the diaries. They were frightened by their publishers that their work would never see the light of day. Authors are easily frightened when their work is involved.

To make a long story shorter, Mason and Lochner found themselves in a legal squabble which is so peculiar that it is of general interest. The attitude of our government in Germany is that war criminals have no property rights. Also, they have no heirs. Goebbels was a war criminal.

So I wrote Mr. Baynton to ask whether this Mason and Lochner case, as it was handled by his office, would not pave the way for the reopening of every case of denazification and dismantling, which could involve this country in claims for billions of dollars.

Mr. Baynton replied: "Under present law no vested German property is to be returned to the original owners except to certain classes of non-hostile persons, such as persecutees."

"I have noted your comment that the action of the Department of Justice in this case will affect cases of denazification and dismantling in Germany. I think this comment is answered by my statement . . . pointing out that the vesting of Goebbels' rights has not been effected for the purpose of returning them to Goebbels' heirs but for the purpose of seizing them for the benefit of the United States. There is no connection between the vesting of German property in the United States and the dismantling or denazification program in Germany. Actions in Germany with respect to German national's property does not affect whatever property he may have owned in the United States."

There is more to this, but this quotation gives the gist of it. As I read the whole letter, I, not being a lawyer, still wondered. So I wrote further and discovered that the diaries were not the heirs of Goebbels, but of Joseph Goebbels, acquired by inheritance or otherwise any rights withing Germany depends upon what legal steps have been taken in Germany and what the law is there.

It would seem to me that Mason and Lochner did a job of work in making this document available in English. They have spent considerable money fighting the case.

I cannot help making the comparison that in the Amorsia case Philip Jaffe was fined $2,500 for having in the office of that magazine 1,700 documents stolen from the government of the United States, while Frank Mason and Louis Lochner are being fined more than $131,000 for translating and having published the Goebbels diaries which they obtained legitimately.

Maybe the comparison is a non sequitur—and maybe not.

DISTURBANCES OF THE NOSE

It is agreed there are not less than 150 known causes of headache. Physicians today take a headache seriously, not because headache is considered dangerous, but because they know that constant or frequent headaches can "wear down" the strongest nerves. Many cases of headache are believed to be due to pressure of some kind—gas pressure, pressure on certain nerves from deformities, defects or injuries.

Pain or ache in forehead is often thought to be due to defective vision. It is of interest to learn that defective vision is not the commonest cause of an ache in the forehead above the eyes; such a pain is more often due to disturbances of the nose and the sinuses adjoining it. Headache due to gas pressure from stomach and intestine occurs most often in middle of forehead and also at back of head.

In "Irish Journal of Medical Science," Dublin, Dr. W. J. Mollinson states that, as pointed out in 1883 by Dr. Crothers, pain felt just above the eyebrows is sometimes due to disease or disfigurement of the sinuses immediately above the eyebrows but is often due to inflammation or irritation of the lining of the nose. Experimental studies were carried out on the walls of the nose and sinuses to discover the places or sites at which pain is produced. In no case did stimulating these spots in the nose cause pain in back of head. For many years physicians have believed that stimulation of lining of nose was a cause of pain at back of head.

Dr. Mollinson classifies nose or nasal headaches into (1) those in connection with the walls of the nose; (2) those in connection with the sinuses adjoining the nose and (3) those due to the neuralgias. Simple pressure on the middle turbinate or turbinate bone in nose is often regarded as the most common cause of headache due to a nose condition. This pressure may be due to a polyp or other growth. Pressure occurs against the branch of the large blood vessel supplying the head and neck.

The lesson from the above is that when a headache is just above the eyebrow or lower part of forehead, it is often due to some disturbance in the nose.

Anybody Want a Job?

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DEWE PEARSON

Washington — The more you look into the operations of Congressman John S. Wood of Georgia, the more it appears that he merits as much investigation as the witnesses appearing before his Un-American Activities Committee.

Not only did the congressman take a $1,000 fee from a crippled boy injured by an army truck, in return for passing legislation; not only did he put his servant on the government payroll at $50 a week while that servant actually worked most of the time in Wood's home; but in addition it appears that Wood connived to postpone the investigation of Communist activities in Hollywood.

When Wood became chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee in July, 1945, one of the first jobs on the calendar was to probe reports that various key writers for the film industry were Communists. Congressman Dies of the old Dies Committee had collected various information on this, and Wood even sent an investigator to Hollywood.

But, for some mysterious reason, the probe never came off while Wood was chairman of the committee. Why is the big question.

The answer can be traced to Louis B. Mayer of Metro-Goldwyn Mayer and to an obscure Georgia lawyer, Edgar Dunlap. In Congressman Wood's home district, to whom Mayer paid a whopping big fee.

That any of this fee was passed on to the congressman was vigorously denied, just as Wood proclaims to high heaven that he knew nothing about the $1,000 fee which his office secretary, Carl Tallant, collected from the boy who was hit by an army truck.

It is interesting to note, however, that Dunlap wrote to Mayer during the course of the Hollywood probe, reporting that everything had been taken care of with his congressman. It is also significant that Louis B. Mayer had slews of high-priced lawyers in Washington whom he could call on, and did not need to reach down into Georgia to hire a hitherto unknown friend of Chairman Wood. Among Washington counsel for the motion picture industry are James Byrnes, former secretary of state; Paul McNutt, former governor of Indiana and high commissioner to the Philippines; while Eric Johnston, chief representative of the industry, knows his way around in Washington better than almost anyone else.

In addition, Mayer's personal Washington attorneys included astute Alfons Landis, partner of Ambassador Joe Davies; and Ellsworth Alford, a great friend of Senator George of Georgia. Ignoring these, however, Louis B. Mayer selected an unknown attorney in the home district of the chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee to handle the Hollywood probe.

Mayer's judgment was good. For Dunlap's friend, Congressman Wood, puttered around with his much-ballyhooed probe, but he never did hold it. Louis J. Russell went to Hollywood for the committee in 1945, and collected important information about Communist film writers. This was supplemented by two ex-F.B.I. agents, H. A. Smith and A. B. Leckie.

But Congressman Wood, then chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee, did nothing with this material. He waited a year and a half, until December, 1946, by which time the Democrats had been defeated and the Republicans were within 30 days of taking over. Then he went to Hollywood, was wine and dined, and given the usual treatment. But that was all. He made no investigation.

And it was not until Wood stepped down as chairman during the 80th Congress, and the Republicans took over, that the Hollywood probe began. It was under the Republicans that various screen writers and producers were summoned to Washington, as a result of which 30 writers have now been convicted.

Virtually all the information which the Republicans used had previously been collected by the old Dies Committee or by Wood's investigators. Yet he did not use it.

Dunlap's Admissions

Edgar Dunlap, the Gainesville, Ga., attorney whom Louis B. Mayer selected to represent him, is a big, bluff, prosperous-looking gentleman who, when interviewed, at first denied that he knew Mayer, except to say that he had met him casually on the M.G.M. movie lot in Hollywood in 1946.

Questioned further, Dunlap admitted that he had known Mayer earlier, having met him through Carter Barron, the Georgia congressman who represents Wood in Washington and who is an intimate friend of Congressman Wood.

At first, Dunlap denied he had ever written to Mayer "except maybe a Christmas card." Later, he admitted that he had written to Mayer and reported that he had arranged with Congressman Wood to let Mayer testify before the Un-American Activities Committee on a certain date so he would not be kept waiting in Washington.

After Dunlap's memory was revived, he finally admitted that he had received a fee from Mayer. The fee is reported to have been $25,000, though Dunlap refused to say how much it was.

He also claimed the fee was paid him for expediting a shipment of Mayer's horses in Chicago during the war when there was a tangle over an I.C.C. regulation.

"Well, how is it," Dunlap was asked, "that Louis B. Mayer, with a battery of high-priced lawyers, some of them in Chicago and some in Washington, goes down to Georgia to get you to arrange for the shipment of his horses?"

This seemed to stump Mr. Dunlap. He had no explanation except to say that he had met Mayer through Carter Barron in Washington and they had become good friends. This, of course, was in contradiction to Dunlap's earlier statement that he knew Mayer only casually.

Wood "Our Only Friend"

Finally, after Wood stepped down from the chairmanship of the Un-American Activities Committee, the Republicans, on October 21, 1947, proceeded with the long-delayed probe of Hollywood just two years and six months after Wood first sent investigators to California.

And on the night of October 20, Paul McNutt, attorney for the motion picture producers, and Eric Johnston, czar of the motion picture industry, met privately with two attorneys for the motion picture writers — Bartley Crum and Robert Kenny, former attorney general of California. At that time, the screen writers and the producers were putting up a common front; and very significantly McNutt and Johnston told Crum and Kenny:

"The only man who is friendly to us on the committee is Congressman Wood of Georgia. We have had trouble getting him up here, but we're going to meet his train tomorrow and hustle him up to the hearing. He is the nearest approach we have to Senator McFarland of Arizona who helped us out in the Nye investigation of Hollywood."

In an early column I will quote from the committee hearing to show how Hollywood's trusted friend, Congressman Wood, protected Louis B. Mayer, the man who sent a fat fee down to a small-town Georgia lawyer in Congressman Wood's district. (Copyright, 1950, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Both Parties Miss Big Campaign Issue by Leaving Out Plans to Avoid Third World War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, June 20 — The Republican party has missed the biggest issue of the year — the desire of the American people to avoid a third world war.

The Democrats, on the other hand, have bungled the same question and gotten themselves into a rigid position the logic of which points to inevitable war.

The other day Republican spokesmen said they have four main issues in mind for the coming campaign — opposition to the Truman plan of farm subsidies, opposition to deficits and excessive spending by the federal government, removal of burdensome excise taxes, and a program to get rid of Communist influences inside the government.

These by themselves will affect different regions of the country in various ways, and none of these issues is likely to cut across the whole voting population as would the issue of war and peace.

The Republicans, by their denunciation of Communism in the government have won some votes, but they also have placed themselves in the position of being indifferent to ways and means of attaining international peace.

The Democratic administration is beginning to sense the importance of the issue, and the official line which all speakers have just been ordered to take is to emphasize the word "peace" as much as possible. This, however, is transparently artificial. The truth is the administration has been telling the American people now for several months that any agreements with the Kremlin are not worth the paper they are written on. Last week Secretary of State Acheson at Dallas said that when the leaders of Russia were eventually impressed by our armament and economic program, there could be "meaningful negotiations."

That clearly indicates the negotiation some day with the same group in the Kremlin. If the Soviet government, on the other hand, cannot be relied upon, then all talk of "negotiation" of any kind is futile. This, of course, is what the military men in Washington privately believe and have said in the past.

The Kremlin is building up its armament, and in the last few days new figures on Russian expenditure for arms have been published that indicate that the armament race is on in earnest.

Where is the administration going? If it isn't really interested in the agreements the Kremlin would negotiate, and if it speaks of negotiation in the dim and distant future only as a gesture for political reasons, it is evident that the real policy of the Democratic Party is "watchful drifting." This is one of the most dangerous of all policies, since it leads to such hardening of positions as to make war seem inevitable.

So interested has the administration been in recent months in selling Congress on the idea of more arms spending that it has not dared to play up the "peace" angle or the "negotiation" idea for fear that congressmen would not vote the money. With Congress about to adjourn and appropriations fully approved, there now can be more talk, at least, of peace.

But that's where the Republicans have been ahead. They could lead the administration to define its policy clearly. They could have attacked the over-emphasis which has been placed by the administration on arms spending, and the underemphasis which has been placed on the negotiation idea of peace planning.

The Republicans, however, have been so busy in developing an anti-Communist crusade that they have overlooked the biggest hazard of all — the way an arms race leads to war and the failure of the administration to make any constructive suggestions as to how, without an actual war, it can ever get America out of the dilemma it has gotten into.

The Republicans could have insisted on a cut-off of all parleys of jockeying with the Kremlin and they could have urged, instead, the formulation of a program that would appeal to the Russian people so that the latter would in due time see the wisdom of renouncing their leaders. The satellite countries are fertile ground for such appeals.

But nobody — neither the Republicans nor the Democrats — has come forth with a program that could really appeal to the Russian people or to the peoples of the satellite countries who in the last analysis will decide whether they want to fight another war. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, June 19 — Organized crime purporting to be Republican issue programs, blueprints and schedules to attract Democratic and socialist votes. Some older Republicans are so discouraged that they are willing to yield leadership to ignorant, immature and unprincipled sprouts calling themselves "young" Republicans if, by this means, the party could elect enough nominal Republicans to control the committee in Congress. They are frankly willing to vote for actual Democrats or Socialists on the Republican ticket, believing that the mere label on the majority would somehow assure them of Republican administration.

This is despondency. A Republican administration or Congress which would put through the Truman-socialist program of compulsory government medical service involving a check-off might as well be called a Democratic or Marxian administration or Congress. The label would be reminiscent of the mockery of the ill-printed, ill-pasted blandishments on the counterfeit Old Stepfather and Old Bath-tub that we deceived ourselves with during prohibition. It was all hoot and the horrible effects were not ameliorated by the labels. Any Republican who is willing to settle for Senators Margaret Chase Smith, of Maine, Aiken and Gladders, of Vermont, alien T. of New York, is kidding himself. These people are at best, Democratic dead-weights who don't uphold the republic which existed until the adoption of the fatal 16th amendment and the 17th, providing for the direct election of senators.

The 16th was the turning point. By that fundamental change, the people ceased to be masters of Congress and became subjects of Congress and the White House.

It abolished their right to any portion of their earnings. We now retain only as much as Congress, by a generous impulse, allows us to keep. Cordell Hall, the Democratic hill-billy congressman of that day, was the author and most potent advocate of the 16th. He had not the excuse of the ignorance which might be said to mitigate the crime of the sockless hay-shakers who only understood that this was a chance to thrive on the taxes of the New York and Chicago city slickers.

One of the "young" Republican programs proposes to grant federal money to states with low per capita wealth and low public revenues to raise their expenditures per child "at least to the national educational average."

One reason why they have low revenues is that income tax and Social Security take the substance. The question whether the federal government has any right to any part of the cost of educating children is clearly decided in favor of the idea. But the constitution of this republic never even entertained the thought that a New Yorker should have to pay a per capita to provide elaborate school buildings and fancy facilities for the children of the Arizona citizen whose per capita wealth is far below his share of expenditure on schools. The crass activity which is called education was none of the federal government's business. It would be equally reasonable to make the citizen of Key West pay taxes to shovel snow off the walk of a citizen in Buffalo. "Education" has become a vast professional racket for parasites and conspirators with a devouring appetite for taxes, pushing children out from an advance guard.

WHEN A BOOK BEGINS

When does an author begin work on a book? This question interests the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which lets a writer spread over a 36-month period the income he gets in one year from one work. This reduces the tax. The author's work must cover 36 months or more from the beginning of the enterprise.

The matter has come up in the dispute of the Bureau with David Richardson, author of "American Guerrilla in the Philippines". While in the navy in November, 1941, he decided to write a book on his war experiences, and began to keep notes. In April, 1942, the notes were lost in a Japanese attack. A second set went when his out-rigger canoe capsized off the Philippine coast. The third set was more successful; the book came out in April, 1945.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue ruled that Richardson had spent less than 36 months on the book. He insisted that the true commencement was April 9, 1942, the date of the first happening described in the text, or January 1, 1943, when he began to take notes on his guerrilla experiences. Either date was less than 36 months from January 18, 1945, when he sent his manuscript to the publisher.

The Federal Tax Court has come to Richardson's aid, ruling that his work began in 1941, when he started to take notes. Losing them later was immaterial.

Future authors might claim that work began with their first idea. "Robinson Crusoe", which appeared in 1719, was based on a passage in Captain Edward Cooke's "Voyages" published in 1712. DeFoe's work therefore began in 1712; the Tax Court would have so ruled. The Bureau would have been cold to DeFoe's claim unless he could have shown his dated notes.

The moral to all authors is: Keep your preliminary notes. The tax collector will get you if you don't.

General Eisenhower thinks that the Alaska garrisons should be strengthened. Whoever would have thought only a few years ago that there was any possibility of a war of any sort taking place in frozen Alaska?

WONDER SHIP

To the list of historic ships add the St. Roch. This Royal Canadian Mounted Police boat, which docked at New York the other day, is the first ship on record to circumnavigate North America. It also made the first recorded eastward crossing of the Northwest Passage, the waterway across Northern Canada from Pacific to Atlantic.

The only modern vessel with a record of exploration like this is the Fram, the sturdy craft in which the Norwegian explorer Fridrich Nansen hoped to drift across the North Pole. Caught in the ice, he nevertheless made the farthest northern voyage of his day. Later Roald Amundsen, another Norwegian, took the Fram to Antarctica as a base of supplies for his dash to the South Pole.

With such a record as the St. Roch possesses, it should, when no longer seaworthy, go to some museum, where an honored use could be found for it, as auditorium for talks or as show room for pictures and objects illustrating the age of exploration.

A word to the wise is said to be sufficient. No wonder there are so many long-winded people.

PARTY STRATEGY

President Truman is not in favor of expelling the Dixiecrats from the Democratic party. He thinks that the Democratic party could use all the votes it can get from any source.

This view will not be accepted by many who would like to have the lines between the two main parties more sharply defined, with the conservatives in one and the liberals in the other.

It may be questioned whether this will ever be accomplished on a wholesale basis, whatever individual voters may do. Former Vice President John N. Garner, who had an intimate knowledge of politics, thought that

THE GOEBBELS DIARIES

This is a case that I cannot understand, but maybe the readers will. I shall try to make it as clear and interesting as possible, but that will be a chore.

It seems that Frank E. Mason and Louis P. Lochner, two distinguished American journalists, came into possession of the diaries of Goebbels, Hitler's public relations man. They got Doubleday & Company to publish the diaries in English.

The book went well and on October 31, 1949, Doubleday said that they owed Mason and Lochner $131,804.34, but that they would not pay over the money because the Office of Alien Property had intervened in the matter.

No impropriety was involved as to how these newspapermen got the diary. A civilian employee of the military government of the United States in Berlin, William F. Heimlich, of Columbus, Ohio, obtained 7,000 sheets of it from a junk dealer who had eluded out the Ministry of Propaganda Building in the Russian sector of Berlin. Heimlich gave the 7,000 loose sheets to Herbert Hoover, who was then in Germany, for the Hoover Library in Stamford University, California. The War Department permitted the Hoover Library to collect documents. Heimlich's presentation was known to his superiors.

Lochner and Mason translated this material with the permission of the Hoover Library, producing the book, "The Goebbels Diaries." When Harold I. Baynton of the Office of Alien Property learned that such a book was to be published, he entered a claim that the material was the property of the government of the United States.

Then this office went further. Through an official, David L. Bazelon, assistant attorney general, Mason and Lochner were asked to sign a letter proffered them by Bazelon, which they did because they were frightened by their publishers that their work would never see the light of day. Authors are easily frightened when their work is involved.

To make a long story short, Mason and Lochner found themselves in a legal squabble which is so peculiar that it is of general interest. The attitude of our government in Germany is that war criminals have no property rights. Also, they have no heirs. Goebbels was a war criminal.

So I wrote Mr. Baynton to ask whether this Mason and Lochner case, as it was handled by his office, would not put the way for the reopening of every case of denazification and dismantling, which could involve this country in claims for billions of dollars.

Mr. Baynton replied: "Under present law no vested German property is to be returned to the original owners except to certain classes of non-hostile persons, such as persons."

I have noted your comment that the action of the Department of Justice in this case will affect cases of denazification and dismantling in Germany. I think this comment is answered by my statement . . . pointing out that the vesting of Goebbels' rights has not been effected for the purpose of returning them to Goebbels' heirs but for the purpose of seizing them for the benefit of the United States. There is no connection between the vesting of German property in the United States and the dismantling of denazification program in Germany. Actions in Germany with respect to any German national's property does not affect whatever property he may have owned in the United States.

There is more to this, but this quotation gives the gist of it. As I read the whole letter, I, not being a lawyer, still wondered. So I wrote further and disclosed the fact that neither Mason nor Lochner or next of kin of Joseph Goebbels acquired by inheritance or otherwise any rights withing Germany depends upon what legal steps have been taken in Germany and what the law is there.

It would seem to me that Mason and Lochner did a job of work in making this document available in English. They have spent considerable money fighting the case.

I cannot help making the comparison that in the Amerasia case Philip Jaffe was fined $2,500 for having in the office of that magazine 1,700 documents stolen from the government of the United States, while Frank Mason and Louis Lochner are being fined more than $131,000 for translating and having published the Goebbels diaries which they obtained legitimately.

Maybe the comparison is a non sequitur—and maybe not.

DISTURBANCES OF THE NOSE

It is agreed there are not less than 150 known causes of headache. Physicians today take a headache seriously, not because headache is considered dangerous, but because they know that constant or frequent headaches can "wear down" the strongest nerves. Many cases of headache are believed to be due to pressure of some kind—gas pressure, pressure on certain nerves from deformities, defects or injuries.

Pain or ache in forehead is often thought to be due to defective vision. It is of interest to learn that defective vision is not the commonest cause of an ache in the forehead above the eyes; such a pain is more often due to disturbances of the nose and the sinuses adjoining it. Earache, too, is often due to pressure of the sinuses and occurs most often in middle of forehead and also at back of head.

"Well, how is it," Dunlap was asked, "that Louis B. Mayer, with a battery of high-priced lawyers, some of them in Chicago and some in Washington, goes down to Georgia to get you to arrange for the shipment of his horses?"

This seemed to stump Mr. Dunlap. He had no explanation except to say that he had met Mayer through Carter Barron in Washington and they had become great friends. This, of course was in contradiction to Dunlap's earlier statement that he knew Mayer only casually.

Wood "Our Only Friend"

Finally, after Wood stepped down from the chairmanship of the Un-American Activities Committee in July, 1947, proceeded with the long-delayed probe of Hollywood just two years and six months after Wood first sent investigators to California.

And on the night of October 20, Paul McNutt, attorney for the motion picture producers, and Eric Johnston, czar of the motion picture industry, met privately with two attorneys for the motion picture writers — Bartley Crum and Robert Kenny, former attorney general of California. At that time, the screen writers and the producers were putting up a common front; and very significantly McNutt and Johnston told Crum and Kenny:

"The only man who is friendly to us on the committee is Congressman Wood of Georgia. We have had trouble getting him up here, but we're going to meet him tomorrow and hustle him up to the hearing. He is the nearest approach we have to Senator McFarland of Arizona who helped us out in the Nye investigation of Hollywood."

In an early column I will quote from the committee hearing to show how Hollywood's trusted friend, Congressman Wood, produced a picture of the committee which was sent a fat fee down to a small-town Georgia lawyer in Congressman Wood's district. (Copyright, 1950, The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Both Parties Miss Big Campaign Issue by Leaving Out Plans to Avoid Third World War

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, June 20.—The Republican party has missed the biggest issue of the year—the desire of the American people to avoid a third world war.

The Democrats, on the other hand, have bungled the same question and gotten themselves into a rigid position the logic of which points to inevitable war.

The other day Republican spokesmen said they have four main issues in mind for the coming campaign—opposition to the Brannan plan of farm subsidies, opposition to deficits and excessive spending by the federal government, removal of burdensome excise taxes, and a program to get rid of Communistic influences inside the government.

These by themselves will affect different regions of the country in various ways, and none of these issues is likely to cut across the whole voting population as would the issue of war and peace.

The Republicans by their denunciation of Communists in the government have won some votes, but they also have placed themselves in the position of being different in ways and means of attaining international peace.

The Democratic administration is beginning to sense the importance of the issue, and the official line which all speakers have just been ordered to take is to emphasize the word "peace" as much as possible. This, however, is transparently artificial. The truth is the administration has been telling the American people now for several months that any agreements with the Kremlin are not worth the paper they are written on. Last week Secretary of State Acheson at Dallas said that when the leaders of Russia stood, the administration by our armament and economic program, there could be "meaningful negotiation" some day with the same group in the Kremlin.

If the Soviet government, on the other hand, cannot be relied upon, then talk of "negotiation" of any kind is futile. This, of course, is what the military men in Washington privately believe and have been saying for some time. The Kremlin is building up its armament, and in the last few days new figures on Russian expenditure for arms have been published which indicate that the armament race is on in earnest.

Where is the administration going? If it isn't really interested in the agreements the Kremlin would negotiate, and if it speaks of negotiation in the dim and distant future only as a gesture for political reasons, it is evident that the real policy of the Democratic Party is "watchful drifting." This is one of the most dangerous of all policies, since it leads to such hardening of positions as to make war seem inevitable.

No interested has the administration been in recent months in selling Congress on the idea of more arms spending that it has not dared to play up the "peace" angle or the "negotiation" idea for fear that congressmen would not vote the money. With Congress about to adjourn and appropriations fully approved, there now can be more talk, at least, of peace.

But that's where the Republicans have been asleep. They could have pressed the administration to define its policy clearly. They could have attacked the over-emphasis which has been placed by the administration on arms spending, and the underemphasis which has been placed on the negotiation idea or peace planning.

The Republicans, however, have become so interesting in developing an anti-Communist crusade that they have overlooked the biggest hazard of all—the way an arms race leads to war and the failure of the administration to make any constructive suggestions as to how, without an actual war, it can ever get America out of the dilemma it has gotten into.

The Republicans could have insisted on a cut-off of all parleying or jockeying with the Kremlin and they could have urged, instead, the formulation of a program that would appeal to the Russian people so that the latter would in due time see the wisdom of repudiating their leaders. The satellite countries are fertile ground for such appeals.

But nobody — neither the Republicans nor the Democrats — has come forward with a program that could really appeal to the Russian people or to the peoples of the satellite countries, who in the last analysis will decide whether they want to fight another war. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, June 19.—Organizations purporting to be Republican issue programs, blueprints and schedules to attract Democratic and socialist votes. Some older Republicans are so discouraged that they are willing to yield leadership to ignorant, immature and unprincipled sprouts calling themselves "young" Republicans if, by this means, the party could elect enough nominal Republicans to control the committee in Congress. They are frankly willing to vote for actual Democrats and Socialists on the Republican ticket, believing that the more label on the majority would somehow assure them of Republican administration.

This is despondency. A Republican administration or Congress which would put through the Truman-socialist program of compulsory government industrial service involving a check-off might as well be called a Democratic or Marxian administration or Congress. The label would be reminiscent of the mockery of the ill-printed, ill-pasted blandishments on the counterfeit Old Step-father and Old Bath-tub that we deceived ourselves with during prohibition. It was all hooch and the horrible effects were not ameliorated by the labels. Any Republican who is willing to settle for Senators Margaret Chase Smith, of Maine, Aiken and Flanders, of Vermont, and Ives, of New York, is kidding himself. These people are, at best, Democratic dead-ends who don't uphold the republic which existed upon the adoption of the fatal 16th amendment and the 17th, providing for the direct election of senators.

The 16th was the turning point. By that fundamental change, the people ceased to be masters of Congress and became subjects of Congress and the White House.

Questions - Answers

Q—Why is a stale joke termed a "chestnut"?

A—In an old melodrama, one of the characters tells the same joke over and over with variations. At one telling he is corrected by another character who insists that the tree in the story has been cut down by chestnut. He said, "I have heard you tell the story 25 times and I am sure it is a chestnut."

Q—How many times did Willie Anderson win the United States open golf championship?

A—He won it three consecutive times, in 1903, 1904 and 1905, a mark never equaled.

I know the American people would welcome a realignment of the American party system. With the liberal Republicans joining the Democratic Party, Mr. Gabrielson's (G.O.P. Chairman Guy G. Gabrielson) Republican Party could join in holy wedlock with the Dixiecrats.

June 20, 1940.—The Kingston Recreation defeated the Pennsylvania Red Caps 21-0 in a game at the municipal stadium. The area high noon temperature was 85 degrees.

The Ulster County Chapter, American Red Cross War Relief fund was reported at $12,741.55. Mrs. Annie M. Howard died at her home on New street.

Both Maryland and Kentucky initially sought to remain neutral in the Civil War, according to the Encyclopedia Britannica.

and money received . . . had been properly accounted for. "It was the practice for police officers to make collections of the coins deposited in the parking meters, although Section 18 of the ordinance regulating the parking of vehicles provides: 'It shall be the duty of the city treasurer to designate an employee or employees of the city, in his department, to make regular collections of coins which are deposited in parking meters.' (This inconsistency was corrected by Mayor Newkirk prior to the receipt of the report. The present employee who collects the parking meter coins is designated by the treasurer and is not a police officer.)

"Notices (tickets) issued do not conform with the ordinance. The ordinance provides that notice shall summon the owner to appear before the judge of the city court . . . the notices issued by police officers provide the owner is to appear personally or by representative within 24 hours, to Traffic Division, Police Headquarters. Inquiry disclosed that the city of Kingston has never established a traffic violation bureau for collection of parking violation fines, which is authorized by Section 370-373 of the General Municipal Law.

"Furthermore, there is no provision in the ordinance for the police department to fix bill of $1 for each traffic violation and to pay such moneys, monthly, to the city treasurer.

The auditor's report also recommends that all traffic violations be entered in the docket of the city judge.

It was learned today that Mayor Newkirk, Corporation Counsel James G. Connelly and other city officials will study the report and will meet to determine ways of amending the parking meter ordinance so as to eliminate inconsistencies.

As in the case of the parking meter recommendations, other items in the auditor's report concern instances where transactions were not accomplished in strict accordance with the letter of ordinance. There were no instances of sums of money being unaccounted for or falsely accounted for. In this respect, the report is an "excellent" comment on the city's affairs, Mayor Newkirk said today.

Some of the other items in the report were these: A cost of living bonus of $85 for each member of the paid fire department paid December 21, 1947, was "contrary to the provisions of Article VIII, Section 1, and Article IX, Section 10, of the New York State Constitution, according to an informal opinion of the Attorney General, October 6, 1947."

Several police officers had been paid extra compensation, aggregating $264, for services rendered during strike duty, traffic survey and a farmer's picnic. The report points out this is contrary to Subdivision 5, Section 20, of the General City Law. "A police officer is compensated on an annual salary and even though he is assigned to work extra hours or perform extra duties, such extra hours and duties would be incident to the office of police officer and he would be precluded from receiving any extra compensation," the report comments.

Gasoline furnished two of the city's three garbage collectors was in excess of the amount of $216 stipulated in agreements entered into December 20, 1946, for the year 1947, the report states. The amount of excess was $37.33 in the case of one contractor and $50.85 in the case of the other, the auditors claimed.

The report also noted a few cases in which city equipment was rented to private persons during the period covered. Rental of public works machinery and equipment to private persons and corporations is "not a function of city government and should be discontinued," the report recommended.

The Department of Audit and Control report also lists three instances during the two-year period when members of official city boards were also members of firms which received contracts for the sale of services or materials to the city. Total amount involved in the contracts was $3,120.46.

The report does not charge any irregularity in the amount of the contracts, but that for an officer of a municipality to be "directly or indirectly interested either as a principal, surety or otherwise, in any contract, the expense or consideration whereof is payable out of the city treasury" is contrary to Section 3 of the General City Law.

Guild Craftsmen Open, New Tea Room Friday

Woodstock, June 19—A new tea room in the Woodstock Guild of Craftsmen shop opened Friday. In addition to the room at the rear of the shop used by the weavers, the back terrace overlooking the garden and brook has been furnished for the tea service with tables painted a soft warm grey each bearing a flower design on the top.

It is a pleasant experience to step from the busy main street into the quiet of the Guild garden with the noises of the town muffled to a whisper, to sit down at one of the flower decked tables and order a tea specialty of the Guild.

Mrs. Bessie Stowell is in charge of the tea room and each day will be assisted by two volunteers from the Guild. Mrs. Leon Chambers served on the opening day.

The tables and other decorations were painted by Konrad Cramer and Dick Chambers and Mrs. Stowell designed the menus which feature bird motifs.

We are forming an organization to work for the welfare and progress of the Woodstock community. We believe that women, through their responsibilities in the home as well as their experience in occupations, have a special contribution to make to what may be called "town house keeping and community organization."

It is our purpose also, to bring support to constructive projects, put forward by the Town Board and by voluntary organizations similar to our own in seeking to promote the welfare of the community. We shall keep you informed of our program as it develops and we bespeak your advice and cooperation.

Sincerely yours,
FRANCES DEDERICK,
Temporary Chairman.

Postwar Europe

(The following is one of a series of letters from a former resident of this area, who has returned to Europe for an extended stay and gives his impressions of postwar Europe, as seen through the eyes of a civilian going back to the scenes he knew as a soldier during the war.)

Everything in Europe is near enough even countries. So it's no problem to cross frontiers in a rail ride of less than a day and you find yourself in another country.

One day, I decided to look up an old friend in Antwerp, who had invited me down for the week-end. I hesitated for weeks, figuring that Belgium was another country and a long ride away. I was amazed on checking rail timetables to find Brussels, the Belgian capital, only four hours away from Paris by a daily express that ran from Paris to Amsterdam.

Railroad travel in postwar Europe is much more comfortable than you'd think. The rails have been repaired and new rolling stock makes even a long ride quite easy, if you prefer to ride in the second or third class compartments. In fact, it's not much different than a day coach ride in the States and far cheaper and more comfortable with a reserved seat.

As you board the shiny new express that roars out of the Gare de l'Est Station in Paris, you can sit back and see farmlands only a few miles outside of metropolitan Paris—green fields that stretch all the way to the Belgian border.

In almost no time at all, you are through with the very light customs check by French and Belgian customs officials who filter in the train, asking politely for your passport, not even stopping to examine your baggage.

Before you really know it, your train is pulling into the modern station at Brussels. It scarcely seems as if the ride took four hours at all. And then you see your friend waving madly from the crowded station platform. He has a car waiting to whisk you over the good roads that lead to Antwerp, only 45 minutes away from Brussels.

In Antwerp, my friend had a crowded week-end of sightseeing all mapped out for me, and wouldn't be satisfied until I had climbed over every inch of the city of which he was so proud. His hospitality, like that of other Belgians I met, was limitless. And everywhere, where you stopped to ask directions, you were answered usually in English, for I discovered that the average Belgian speaks at least three languages. He must be able to speak French and Flemish, a combination of Dutch and German, and more than half speak English also, due to their proximity to England, which has meant centuries of trade and commerce.

Almost all of the old section of Antwerp is a museum piece, and a page out of medieval history. The Old Guildhouses still stand as they did in the 1500's, the crooked, narrow, cobblestone streets all are lined with old houses that date back several centuries. For instance, there is the street of the Three Hams, where the old Guild of the Butchers stands. You can pass through seeing how the Flemish lived in the 16th Century, and even see the street bordering on the building itself where blood ran during one of the many wars which Antwerp has known.

Another interesting place is the restored house of Peter Paul Rubens, the famous artist, whose home has been rebuilt almost exactly as he left it in the latter part of the 16th Century. Rows of tulip gardens line the indoor patio where the painter turned out the majority of his superb 2,000 canvases. The furnishings have been kept intact and everything is there to suggest a house actually lived in so that you almost feel you can see the old Flemish master working on a canvas as the late afternoon light filters through the quaint bottleneck windows of the patio.

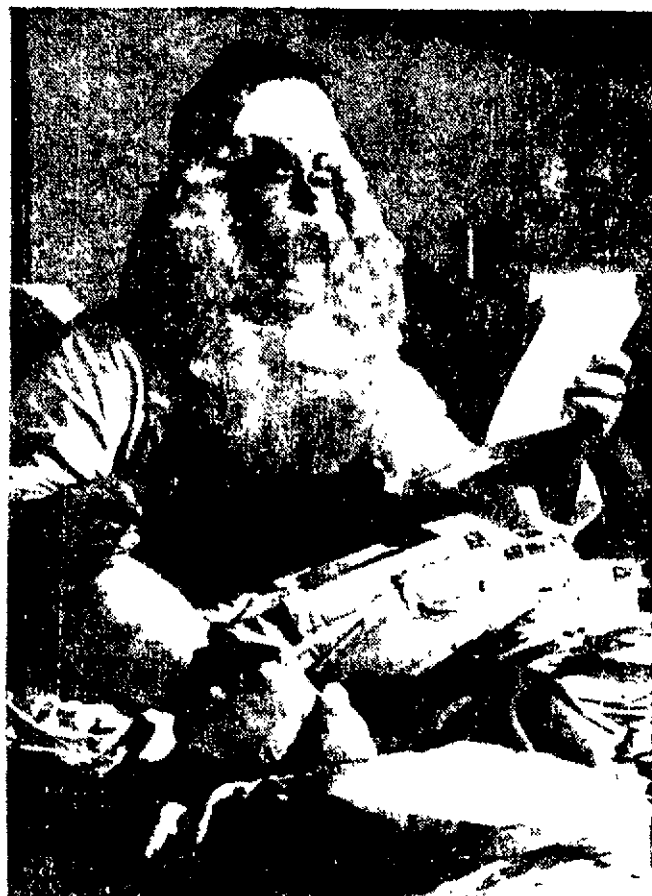

Outside of Antwerp in the little sleepy suburb of Lierre is the famous Zimmer Tower, a curious place that contains over 87 clock faces recording time in all parts of the world, as well as an astronomical laboratory measuring time all over the solar system. Here can be seen the Centenary Clock that never stops running, plus clocks showing the seasons, the tides, the meteoric cycle, the movements of comets around the sun. It's a joy for anyone who has ever owned a cuckoo clock, for little metal figures come out at different periods, to strike the hour, half hour and the quarter. These are figures representing the phases of life: Childhood, Adolescence, Maturity and Old Age. The Old Age figure appears only once daily, at high noon to strike the 12 o'clock, then the years from 1830-1939 pass in review covering the whole century. The Zimmer Tower was the work of Louis Zimmer, the clockmaker to the King of the Belgians, who presented it to his hometown of Lierre in 1939 and where it still stands in the heart of the town square. There are many interesting things to be seen in pocket-sized Belgium, the little country that is sandwiched in between France and Germany, with Holland only a tramcar ride away from the center of Antwerp. I tried to see as much of it as I could, but plan to come back for a second or maybe third look. It's well worth it.

As Pegler Sees It

some nominal Republicans profess to regard as Republican doctrine. There is a superstition that the deep south commonly practices lynching as a sport, but Michigan, Ohio, Minnesota and Pennsylvania have tolerated more lynching in the last 15 years than the deep south ever did. But they make a distinction in favor of the pockets called labor unions, whose lynchings are excluded from the act.

If a mad mob of Crackers kills a colored man suspected of a crime in some turpentine swamp in the line of passion, that undoubtedly is a lynching. But if an organized and instigated battalion of trained goons imported across a state line for purposes of anonymity should reduce the local cops to quivering cowardice and kill and maim in cold blood 15 or 20 citizens not under suspicion of any crime, that would not be a lynching. The anti-lynching law would take no notice.

The federal government has no right or duty to mess in local police work except to the extent already provided, which may be excessive. But if it had such a right or duty, then the distinction in favor of mighty bands of criminals operating under formal charter as political wards of the ruling party obviously is Hitlerian doctrine. Hitler's Brown Shirts offer a precedent and a parallel. Yet these criminal institutions are political subsidiaries of the Democratic Party and now we find organizations professing to be Republican endorsing this horrible business as Republican doctrine.

My essays are not consecrated to the candidacies of all who offer themselves as Republicans. A Marxian on the Republican ticket is a Marxist still. It is a compromise of a fraud to support opponents of the republic on our ticket. Vermont, historically a Republican state, is now actually to the left of the New Deal and infected with actual Communists in the lower portion, especially in summer. That was why there was such lively hope that the Alger Hiss trial would be transferred to Vermont. (Copyright, 1950, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

One Month's Alimony
Los Angeles, June 20 (AP)—For 26 days of marriage, photographers model Thelma Glass, 28, was awarded one month's alimony. Superior Judge Joseph Matthy yesterday allowed her a flat $250 as alimony instead of the $2,000 monthly she had demanded. Her husband is Richard A. Glass, 26, whose family operates a large produce company. Glass showed his weekly salary from the business was only $76. They were married March 2 and separated March 28. Glass sued her for divorce, charging "cruel and inhuman treatment." She countered with a demand for $2,000 monthly pending trial of the suit, date for which has not been fixed.

Back Stalin Plan
Moscow, June 20 (AP)—A cheering, applauding Supreme Soviet (Parliament) voted unanimously last night to continue Premier Joseph Stalin's government in office. Eleven Community Party Poli-turo members were present as the joint Houses of Parliament also voted support of resolutions demanding prohibition of atomic weapons and branding as war criminals officials of the first government to use atom weapons. Speakers attacked United States and British government policies as "imperialist and aggressive" and said that Russia has mastered atomic energy for creative uses. Preliminary figures indicate that 1,610,000 acres of land were reforested in Japan in 1949.

Board Is Convinced
Olson, N. Y., June 20 (AP)—A $151.44 repair bill convinced the board of education that something more was needed in the high school driving course. "Instructions on checking of oil, water and battery are now a part of the course," said George L. Purdy, a board member. The bill was for replacing bearings and a crankshaft because the oil ran low in an automobile used in the course.

Today's Business Mirror

By SAM DAWSON

New York, June 19 (AP)—Have a yen to head one of the nation's leading "best managed" businesses?

You'll have to have ability and integrity, but above that you may have a better chance if you are a native of the northeastern quarter of the nation, went to an eastern college and are in your fifties. If you make the grade you're likely to get better than $100,000 a year and own more than $500,000 of your company's stock.

At least that's the composite picture of the presidents of corporations with outstanding management ratings in a statistical study to be published this week by the American Institute of Management.

The institute, a foundation devoted to furthering the role of management in industry, studied more than 2,000 corporations and selected 238 as being "excellently managed." Of these, 204 when queried told all about their presidents.

Most of the executives were born in the heavily industrialized states in the northeastern quarter of the nation. Eight were foreign-born.

New York Leads

First among the states is New York, with Ohio second, Pennsylvania third, Illinois fourth, and Connecticut and Massachusetts tied for fifth. The institute notes, however, that the south and southwest are likely to be partial to native sons to head corporations with headquarters there.

One out of four of the top men never finished college. But here a trend is clearly discernible. The younger the corporation president, the more likely he is to be a college graduate. But the younger firm puts less emphasis on the college degree than does the long-established firm. The non-grads are likely to be found among the hold-overs from a more rugged business era or among the heads of fast-growing new industries where aggressiveness counts more than training.

Of the three out of four who are college graduates, 40 per cent attended eastern schools. Yale graduates lead the list, with Harvard second, Cornell third, and Columbia, Princeton and the University of California tied for fourth.

Average Age Is 58

The average age of the 204 presidents is 58 (younger than the average director). None is under 40, but one is over 80. The fifties lead with 52 and the sixties number 73.

The presidents usually get, in pay and bonus, more than $100,000 a year, but the range is wide—from more than a half million

Holdings of Presidents

Forty presidents hold between $25,000 and $99,000, while 13 have less than a $10,000 slice. The smallest direct stock holding was by the head of a food chain store company, with $4,000 credited to him.

The institute believes that chief executives take a large personal stake "in those types of businesses which require relatively little fixed capital but much genius in their creation or to survive in the face of competition." The institute adds that many of these large holdings sprang from family interests.

It finds that presidents of railroads seldom own large blocks of their companies' stock, perhaps because the rails have "been subject to serious stresses over many years," and because many rail chiefs came up from the ranks.

Individual ownership of stock has little weight with a board of directors in fixing salaries, the institute believes. Rather, it concludes, "presidential salaries in the larger and better managed corporations are as much determined by company custom and tradition as by any other single factor."

First Time—Hole in One

Detroit, June 20 (AP)—Teddy Joged, a fifth grade pupil went golfing yesterday for the first time in his life and shot a hole-in-one. Teddy played with his buddy, Paul, and Paul's father, Mike Sawast, at Sunnybrook course. On the 149-yard over-the-creek ninth hole, Teddy's tee shot bounced off a bridge, hit a tree near the green, caromed to the right and rolled into the cup.

Cotton Is Grandfather

Santa Monica, Calif., June 20 (AP)—Mrs. James P. Young, 22, gave birth to a daughter, making actor Joseph Cotton, 45, father of Mrs. Young, one of Hollywood's youngest grandfathers. The seven-pound, 11-ounce infant arrived yesterday, the first child for Mrs. Young and her actor-husband.

Real 'Hot Rod'

Kansas City, Kas., June 20 (AP)—Two young brothers, passengers in a "hot rod" motor car, fell out and were injured when it turned a corner yesterday. Police decided the driver, Wayne Ward, Jr., 15, had stripped the car down too much. They declared it unsafe for these reasons: No body, no lights, no floorboards, no rear fenders. The only seat cushion was not fastened to the frame.

Stone Ridge School Will Graduate Six

Graduation exercises for pupils of the Stone Ridge School will be held Thursday at 7 p. m. Weather permitting, exercises will be held in the rear of the school building. In case of inclement weather, the program will be presented at the Grange Hall.

Congressman William Whittington of Mississippi will be the guest speaker. The graduating class includes Blair Cornish, William Davenport, John Mack, Charles Osterhoudt, William Robinson and Roger Roosa. Fifty-one pupils were enrolled.

Graduates of Oak Grove will be guests of the Stone Ridge School.

Throughout the past year students of the school organized a banking system with total earnings of $439.06, made and sent 200 Easter cards to the Castle Point Veterans' Hospital, won five prizes in the American Legion Poppy contest, visited the home of the Misses Della and Helen Clark of Stone Ridge to inspect the Vanderlyn paintings, cashmere and paisley shawls, an old-fashioned music box and other items.

Students also inspected the three statues at Academy Green in Kingston given to the city by Mrs. Charbonne of Stone Ridge. Other trips were made to the Senate House and museum, Farmer's Museum and James Fenimore Cooper House at Cooperstown and the circus at Madison Square Garden.

Loans Are for Homes

Washington, June 20 (AP)—That old gag about a farmer preferring a good barn to a good home took a beating today. Ems H. Ward of the Farmers Home Administration said most of the loans being made by his Agriculture Department agency are either for construction or repair of homes. Ward spoke to the American Society of Agricultural Engineers.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By HAL BOYLE

New York, (AP) — Tips by the poor man's philosopher to a young June bridegroom:

Well, my boy, if you hope for a quick success in marriage today you're going to have to make a sharp break with the past.

Don't try to be the king of your kitchenette. Man has tried through the ages to rule his roost by force—and ended up just a mouse around the house. This is because he has never been able to make his muscle match woman's indomitable will, her soft insistence on having her own way.

The thing to do is to confuse her, worry her into a position where she'll spend the rest of her life trying to make you happy.

You must remember that you are going into marriage completely unprepared. But she has been warned by her mother:

"He'll try to boss you, dear. So you put the beast in his place right at the start."

The best thing you can do is to do the unexpected. Crush her with loving kindness. Bring her flowers every day from work and greet her with a kiss.

Not A Finger

Don't let her lift her finger around the house. You do all the chores. You wash the windows, scrub the bathroom floor, run the cleaner, gallop to the grocery store. Do as much of the cooking as you can. And, above all, insist on washing the dishes and drying them all by yourself.

"No dishpan hands for my little darling," you can tell her.

Naturally she'll be comparing you critically to her own father. She'll be lonesome for her mother too. So don't bring your own noisy friends home. Invite her parents over for dinner at least five nights a week.

Then belt her old man with spilling ashes all over the rug and telling the same bragging stories your wife has heard since she was in kindergarten. When your mother-in-law comes into the kitchen and sniffs that the place is a mess, just answer humbly:

Ma Loses Out

"I'm sorry. I do the very best I can, mother-in-law dear."

It won't take your wife long to decide that her old man had better do his drinking in his own home. And she isn't going to let any other woman—even her mother—boss you around. She'll get rid of them.

By now she knows she is practically useless, and guilt sweeps over her. And she is weary of your perpetual, cloying affection.

"Don't you have a hobby like other men?" she demands.

"I used to like to go bowling or play poker," you say. "But you are my hobby now, my dove. I wouldn't know what to do with myself if I went out without you."

You have her on the ropes now, and it is time for the clincher. Let her come into the living room a few times and discover you lying on the sofa, weeping silently. When she asks you what's the matter, just mumble bravely:

V for Victory

That does it. She is completely frustrated. Before long she will be courting you—trying her best to please you. She will insist on doing all the housework herself. She will buy you pretty clothes. She will work over money and force you to go out and spend evenings with the boys.

You'll be the boss in your marriage, my boy, and you can get anything you want. But don't forget to have an occasional weeping spell. If there's anything a woman can't stand—it's to see a man in tears.

40 Million Pounds Of Sugar Are Eaten Daily, Club Hears

About 40,000,000 pounds of sugar are consumed daily as a food, and sugar is the "greatest of all medicines," Mrs. William McNamée told the Little Gardens Club at a meeting Friday at her home.

In her prepared paper, Mrs. McNamée said other uses for sugar included: mullage for postage stamps, to strengthen concrete, as a mounting medium for microscope slides, anti-freeze, injection into apple trees to influence bearing, wound powder, fungus cultures, to give gloss to ink, builder for ceramic powder, intravenous feeding, mold coating in steel manufacturing.

All efforts of science to produce synthetic sugar in the laboratory had ended in failure, Mrs. McNamée declared. Sugar is a chemical compound of carbon, hydrogen and oxygen, "which is nothing more than concentrated sunshine," she said.

Describing sugar as "the most valuable food for the human body," Mrs. McNamée said sugar was first observed in India many hundreds of years ago, and history concurred that the processing of it started there. It was first made into solid form in Persia. The Arabs and later the Egyptians then contributed to the progress of sugar making.

Present day refined cane sugar is obtained by two steps, Mrs. McNamée said—washing and refining. She said sugar was the only food in the human diet that consists of a single chemical compound. All others are mixtures, she said.

Miss Ruth Waterbury described for the club the sugar cane industry as she observed it in the Virgin Islands.

Mrs. Arthur Quimby also addressed the club, describing her visit to the Sugarites Flower Show and some of the prize winning exhibits.

Mrs. Albert Phillips entertained with Mrs. McNamée and Mrs. John D. Groves pouring.

Mrs. Gilkey, who is at work on a master's degree from the State College for Teachers in Albany, is the mother of two children, Gail Christine, one, and Raymond Douglas, six.

The institute will feature several other speakers, a loan-age forum, and a movie, as well as refreshments and a social hour. All sitters and parents are invited.

Tefft Handcuffs Owls For Colonial Win, 7-3

The Colonials chased an old tormentor and introduced a good looking fast ball artist in trouncing the Bristol Owls, 7 to 3, in the series finale between the clubs last night at municipal stadium.

The newcomer, Al Tefft, Yankee farmhand sent up from the Amsterdam club of the Canadian-American League, handcuffed the Owls after a rocky start to fashion an impressive victory in his mound debut with the locals.

After yielding four hits and three runs in the first two innings Tefft's dazzling assortment of crackling fast balls and curves held the Owls in complete subjection with only one safety over the last seven innings.

During that stretch, Tefft yielded a scratch single to Sil Burigo, former Fordham star and struck out nine. He showed a willingness to cut loose with his fast one in the pinches and is a logical candidate to move to among the starting hurlers on Manager Emil Gall's staff.

Rothemel Routed
Bill Rothemel, the Bristol curv-ball pitcher, seemed like a combination of Dizzy Dean, Carl Hubbell and Lefty Grove in recent stints against the Colonials, was just another guy called Bill last night. The Colonials chased him out during a four-run uprising in the fifth.

Billie Ostrom's 3-0 shutout of the Torrington Braves kept the Poughkeepsie Chiefs four games ahead of the Colonials. In the other Colonial League clash, Waterbury outlasted Bridgeport, 11 to 3.

Tefft was in hot water in the first inning principally because of a speed merchant known as Carlos Bernier, top base stealer in organized baseball. Carlos led off with a walk, stole second and then third on successive pitches. Bobby DiBuono's double scored Bernier. DiBuono talked after Dick Kelly's long fly to center field when Sil Burigo lashed a double, the Colonial bullpen went into action. Tefft, however, got La France on a left to left.

Tefft Settles Down
Bernier doubled Ed Argow home in the second but was cut down trying for a triple on a snappy relay from Frank Merola to Harvey Porter to Charlie Aspromonte. Tefft was in supreme command thereafter. The Owl loaded the sacks with three walks in the fifth but failed to score. After picking up a pair of unearned tallies in the six on walks to Aspromonte and Rudy Karson, an error and infield out, the Colonials displayed one of their best hitting stints of the season in the fourth.

Aspromonte doubled to left, Karson doubled to center for one run. Harvey Porter tripled to the right field corner for another. San Piacentino grounded out but Chico Gerard was granted an intentional pass and Rothemel bowed out. Joe Sposa walked leading the sacks and Frank Merola lined a drive over second base that took off like a 2-iron shot.

in golf, scoring Porter and Gerard to make it 6-3.

Porter connected for his second RBI with a two-out single behind Aspromonte's second double in the eighth.

Tefft finished the game with a flourish, striking out three men in the last two innings.

The boxscore:
Tefft showed one of the best fast balls seen at the stadium this season... Charlie Aspromonte enjoyed one of his best nights, two doubles, a single, a walk and three runs scored... Johnny Walther uncorked two great throws from deep in the "hole" between third and short... What about those Poughkeepsie "chiefs"... Carlos Bernier is a hard running, aggressive ball player on the diamond, but off the field is one of the nicest young men you'd want to meet... Tefft jammed the side in the fourth. Bernier put on his "act" in the first, stealing second on the first pitch and third on the next one... He said he is leaving for Puerto Rico to visit his aging wife... It was a chilly night... Mayor Newkirk and Dick McCarthy were their "football" overcoats... Stan Wingo was dressed like he was going duck hunting. No smart duck would be caught in that temperature.

Weather prospects are better for tonight... Chico Gerard was spotted No. 5 in the batting order to get some "hitters" ahead of him... Sam Piacentino went for the collar "5 for 0" but his fine drive to Argow in the eighth was cut down by the best hit ball of the night... Ralph Matzer deserves a hand for the hustle he is showing as Manager Emil Gall's sub... Artie Applebaum goes tonight.

Disbrow Wins 50-Lap Feature

Stan Disbrow posted a new track record and nearly 7,000 fans set a new attendance record for the 50-lap championship stock car race Saturday at the Rhinebeck Speedway.

Disbrow took a commanding position early in the long grid against crack pilots but Neil Cole of Hawthorne, N. J., gradually worked his way up from ninth starting position and after threatening for many laps he passed Disbrow on the 30th lap. Jackie Robinson and Carl Furillo, the Dodgers dusted them off, 8-5, for their fourth victory in as many meetings with their inter-car race Saturday at the Rhinebeck Speedway.

A two-out single by Denny Murtaugh in the second inning, a poor throw by Sissy Sisti and Earl Turner's one-bagger brought in Murtaugh with the only run of the game.

Disbrow regained the lead and held it against a desperate bid by Maggione in the stretch. He whizzed across the starting line 14 minutes 57.1/100 seconds. Maggione grabbed second place. Trailing in order were Dee Carlson, Bill Lovell, Bill Darragh, Russ Truelove and Hal McCarthy. Ray Bonneau of Connecticut scored his first feature victory at Rhinebeck in the 25-lap event that followed the championship race. Motor trouble forced Larry Schuster of West Shokan to the sidelines.

Yesterday's Stars

Battling: Mary Rickert, White Sox, homered in the last of the 11th to give the White Sox a 4-3 victory over the Washington Senators. Rickert also singled to open the ninth and eventually scored the tying run on a long fly by Nelson Fox.

Pitching: Cliff Chambers, Pirates—Yielded only four hits—all singles—in besting Warren Spahn in a pitching duel as Pittsburgh defeated the Boston Braves, 1-0.

Chicago, June 20 (AP)—Boston's Ted Williams has moved into second place behind Stan Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals in the popularity poll of the nation's fans in selecting starting lineups for the All-Star baseball game at Comiskey Park July 11.

Musial today remained the best vote getter with a total of 112,208 ballots. Williams, the American League's most valuable player last year, had 103,317.

Second baseman Jackie Robinson of Brooklyn is third with 107,982 while George Kell, Detroit third baseman, has dropped to fourth with 103,584.

The poll ends at midnight July 1.

The SARAZEN SWING

Technical Nonsense Makes Golf Seem More Difficult Than It Is

First of a series written for NEA Service
By GENE SARAZEN
Winner of Them All

Golf has been made to seem much more difficult than it is. This has been — and is — most harmful.

When the average golfer hears or reads about "the lateral movement of the hips," or "the shifting of the preponderate weight to the left side and left heel," and other technical nonsense, he becomes discouraged and bewildered.

Written instruction can be very helpful when it sticks to fundamentals which apply to all.

Few instruction books do this. The expert, infatuated with an action shot showing some phase of the swing, points out in the caption that the reader will notice that as his club descends there is a sudden pulling down of the left shoulder and a pronounced straightening of the right arm, while the toe of the right foot gradually curves and points toward Mecca.

The expert doesn't think of these things when he is hitting the ball or he wouldn't be an expert long.

I believe that the fundamentals which apply to all can be told simply and understandably.

Anyway, this is what I am setting out to do.

NEXT: Impatience to score is one of the greatest handicaps.

Old Caps Blank Merchants, 12-0 On Thomson's Three-Hit Stint

Game Called in Fifth Because of Darkness

Holcomb "Hookie" Thomson fashioned a five-inning three-hitter as Old Capital Motors blanked the Colonial Merchants, 12 to 0, in an abbreviated City League skirmish yesterday at the Athletic Field.

It was the Capitals' third triumph in five starts and gave them temporary possession of fourth place in the standings.

Meanwhile, the Capitals converted five hits off Roodolus and Clearwater in a dozen tallies, scoring four in the second, a half dozen in the third and a pair in the fourth. Four walks and seven Merchants miscues eased their efforts.

Strangely enough, not a player on either side was able to connect for more than one hit.

Infeld Goes Haywire

A trio of walks to Hopper, Sleight and Lang, a wild pitch, hit batsman and Thomson's two-run single accounted for a quartet of Capital tallies in the second.

Six runs cluttered across for Old Capital in the third via singles by Hopper and Felipe, a base on balls to Sleight and four successive bobbles by the Merchant inner defense.

Bill Olen and Ernie McCormick pulled a double steal for Old Caps in the fourth for a run and Jackson singled home McCormick with the 12th tally.

Jones Dairy seeks its fourth straight win in today's game with Morgan's Rest. Tommy Fisher and Jerry Berchall have been announced as probable starting hurlers.

Snead Favored To Retain P.G.A.

Columbus, O., June 20 (AP)—Drawing Sam Snead, the balding better from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., looks like a pretty fair bet to retain his PGA championship in the $40,000 classic opening tomorrow.

Always serious when money is mentioned, Snead seems downright determined to hang on to the title — and incidentally to pick up the $33,000 prize which goes with it.

Most of the 124 qualifiers for the mid-century event were on hand today for their last free ride around Seneca Country Club's tricky 7,032-yard layout, a course studded with traps, bump-backed fairways and hard-to-figure greens, not to mention some pretty rugged rough.

At least 80 wheeled around in practice sessions yesterday, and as usual Snead had the gallery. It was his first look at the battle-ground, but he clipped a stroke off par with a 37-34-71, getting a burble on the last hole.

Brooklyn — Ernie Durando, 135½, Bayonne N. J., outpointed Mario Moreno, 149½, Cuba (8).

Pioneers Score 2-1 Win Over Lanesville In 12-Inning Clash

Poughkeepsie Pioneers edged the Lanesville A.C. 2 to 1, in a 12-inning thriller, Sunday on the Lanesville diamond.

A spectacular catch by Quinn of a long line drive hit by H. Doney saved the contest in the tenth inning but the Bridge City tossers prevailed in the twelfth. Pioneers won their fifth victory of the season for the Pioneers, leading ten hits and Lanesville a similar total. Bud Smith gave up 11 hits to the Pioneers and whiffed five.

R. Doney had three hits for the winners, while McClelland rapped a pair of doubles. Trabasso and Murphy also had two hits. B. Smith poled three singles for Lanesville, with C. Smith and M. Winchell getting two hits.

Jackson's Hurling Wins For Indians

A superb relief pitching start by George Jackson enabled the Ashokan Indians to edge the Modena Fire Department, 6 to 5, Sunday on the Ashokan diamond.

Jackson relieved starter Personius after Hammer and Biangardi rapped back-to-back homers in the third and permitted only two hits and struck out 16 batters in ensuing 6 1/3 innings.

A two-run rally in the seventh nailed down the victory for the Indians.

Ashokan collected 11 hits off DeWitt and Jackson barked three singles. W. Jackson, Personius and Morris each had two hits, as did Hasbrouck of the Modena club.

The Indians are scheduled to meet their traditional opponents, the Lanesville A.C. Sunday on the Lanesville diamond.

Rusty Callow To Coach Navy

New York, June 20 (AP)—Rusell S. (Rusty) Callow, dean of American rowing coaches, will be the new head crew coach at Navy, the New York Times said today.

The Times' Allison Danzig reported Callow will leave the University of Pennsylvania, where he has been coach since 1927, to succeed Comdr. Charles S. (Buck) Walsh.

Walsh relinquished his post in May to undergo an operation and left the reins in the hands of Ensign Perry Nelson.

Nelson's junior varsity crew placed third and his freshman finished second in the Intercollegiate ate Regatta last Saturday at Marietta, Ohio.

Callow is a product of the University of Washington, which long has been dominant in rowing circles.

He captained the crew in 1915 while winning letters in football and track. He became coach of the Huskies in 1922, winning the Poughkeepsie Regatta in 1923, 1924 and 1926.

He transferred to Penn in 1927 and turned out many standard crews. His 1935 crew won three important cup races, The Childs, Adams, and Blackwell.

Walsh gave Navy championship crews in 1931, 1938 and 1947.

An engine should never be cleaned with gasoline, even when cold, because an undetected short in the electrical system would cause the vapor to ignite.

partment whitewashed the America case, in which four persons were set free and two others fined. Justice officials have testified that the prosecution fell apart because the documents produced by the raiders as evidence were seized illegally. They said they were lucky to get fines of $2,500 against Philip Jaffe, editor of the now-defunct magazine, and $500 against Larsen.

Farm, Resort Jobs Boost Employment

The employment trend in this area continued upward in May with increased hiring in agricultural and resort occupations.

State Department of Labor figures released for the area show that a weekly average of 831 persons received unemployment insurance in Ulster county in May, compared to a weekly average of 1,443 in April, a drop of about 40 per cent.

Job placements in May more than doubled those of April. The Kingston placement office on Fair street put 329 persons in jobs in May, compared to 149 the previous month. About 60 per cent of all jobs filled last month were for men, according to Anthony C. Hart, employed security manager.

More persons sought employment in May than in April. There were 234 applicants for jobs last month, compared to 170 in April at the local office. In May a year ago, 250 placements were made and 252 new applications were received.

Last month a full-time branch office was opened in Ellenville to provide service to employers and applicants in that area. The Ellenville branch had been a two day per week itinerant point.

Wicks Addresses Greene Committee

Senator Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston, majority leader of the New York State Senate, spoke at the village building at Catskill last evening, addressing the Greene County Republican Committee members. There were about 250 in attendance.

Senator Wicks spoke on the principles of the Republican party and told the Republican committee members that the Democratic party had won only a few seats since 1936, and those only with the support of the American Labor Party. He also spoke on the importance of the Thruway, on the mental hygiene program and on the need for increased educational programs.
